ADA CERP Compliance

Clinical courses must be scientifically based with the highest level of evidence-based content presented to attendees. For clinical courses that discuss emerging science in which research is still in development, the level of scientific evidence that is available must be presented, in addition to the known benefits and risks associated with the course subject matter. An assessment of the benefits and risks associated with any clinical recommendations or treatment options must also be presented. Prior to the beginning of a presentation, each speaker must caution the audience about the potential risks of using limited knowledge when incorporating new techniques and procedures into their practices. Whenever possible, speakers should support clinical recommendations with references from scientific literature.

Advertising and Sales

No advertising matter, commercial promotion, solicitation or sales of any type, including instruments and seminars, are permitted in any part of the scientific program.

Conflict of Interest

Each program participant of the Edward C. Penick Endodontic Study Club must provide his/her understanding and disclosure of any conflict of interest, whether or not related to the presentation, and the prospective audience must be made aware of the affiliation/interest through notice in the program and verbally at the beginning of the presentation. Having an interest in a product, service, course or company does not necessarily preclude a speaker's participation or affect the status of the speaker. The purpose of collecting this information is to share it with the membership and/or attendees to help them gain perspective on the presentations and to operate within the guidelines of ADA CERP.

In deciding what to disclose, all speakers should carefully consider whether any particular affiliation(s) could cause embarrassment to the speaker or the Penick Study Club or whether it could lead to questions regarding the speaker.

All speakers should exercise particular care since the overall purpose of Penick Study Club meetings is to present high quality information to members and therefore any potential or real conflict of interest should be disclosed and the presentation should be independent of any self-interest.
